future cinched possession of the United States senate, it may be remarked the east. that that possession with the aid of the south gives the west a master hold on the government machinery. The tenure of a United States senator is six years. That of a representative is only two years. The lower house of congress represents the whims, the resentment or the pleasure, or favor, or disfavor of changable public opinion. In case of the public's disapproval of any policy or party, it is the House of Representatives which first feels the lash of popular punishment; when the public is allowed a whack at the Uni ted States senate it has, in all likeli Oklahoma look to Washington with bood, entirely forgotten its humor to punish.
